

United Way, Board Development, <http://www.boarddevelopment.org>

This site provides detailed information on board development training, accountability, and governance as it pertains to the Canadian Voluntary Sector. It includes information on the board's role, the importance of board governance, the components of board governance, steps to effective board operations, quick checklists, links to tools and resources, links to training for boards, and links to training for staff.

Government of Ontario, Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs, "Effective Committees," <http://www.omafra.gov.on.ca/english/rural/facts/94-015.htm>

The Government of Ontario's Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs provides this website on effective committees. The target is rural non-Aboriginal communities in Ontario but – given that many First Nations are rural in nature – the information on effective committees and specifically on "types of committees" may prove particularly useful to communities considering becoming self-governing.

Institute on Governance. Board Governance Learning Tools-Website.
<http://www.iog.ca/boardgovernance/index.html>